

CONSPIRACY, SAYS MR. TUNG.

Chinese Laundrymen Accused of Ways That Are Dark.

Another Way of Driving a Rival Out of Business.

Two Chinamen, Goh Fon, alias Sam Lee, twenty-eight years old, of 28 East One Hundred and Twelfth street, and Ah Loy, twenty-one years old, of 24 Mott street, were held in the Essex Market Police Court to-day for examination on a charge of conspiracy.

Chin Tung, also a Chinaman, living at 116 Stanton street, was the complainant. He alleges in his affidavit that in August last he opened a laundry at 170-172 Madison avenue. About Sept. 15 he received a visit from Goh Fon, who keeps a laundry in East One Hundred and Twelfth street, and who denounced him bitterly for opening a laundry so close to his own.

Goh Fon threatened to be avenged on Chin Tung, and suggested that he flee from the city to save his life. The following day he made another visit. This time his anger was somewhat cooled down, and he asked Chin Tung to meet him at the Joss House at 16 Mott street, where they could possibly settle their little differences.

Chin Tung refused to go to meet him anywhere. Goh Fon then took Tung to a rooming house at the Chinese Laundry Union, where he was to be avenged. Tung, who was the manager, was in the rooming house at the time.

McGRATH KNOWS GOOD WINE.

And the Jersey Judge Refused to Pay for Any Other.

He Was Arrested, but Secured Bail and Was To-Day Discharged.

Judge John A. McGrath, of Jersey City, presiding at the Second District Court, and also counsel for Hudson County, was a prisoner in the Jefferson Market Police Court, before Justice McMahon this morning, charged with refusing to pay for wine he had ordered with a table d'hôte dinner in the Columbian restaurant, 48 East Fourteenth street.

Charles Hayne, the manager, was the complainant, and Policeman Peppard, of the Mercer street station, took the Jersey Judge into court.

Mr. Hayne said that the prisoner went into the restaurant last night and with his dinner ordered wine, a portion of which he drank, and then refused to pay for it, claiming it was not the kind he wanted.

"How is this, Mr. McGrath?" asked Judge McMahon. "I did go to the restaurant in question," said the prisoner, "and I did order wine-bordeaux wine. The waiter brought me some inferior stuff, and after tasting it I sent it back."

"Again he brought me some poor wine, and that I also refused. I know good wine when I taste it. When he gave me a check the wine was included and I refused to pay for it. I paid the cashier for my dinner, but would not pay for the wine."

"Mr. Hayne said I could not leave until I paid, but I pushed him aside and about reached the door when a man who said he was a private detective stopped me and asked me to pay for the wine. When I refused he called in a policeman and had me taken to the station-house, where I was promptly released."

Then Judge McMahon handed Justice McMahon a letter which corroborated his statement as to his official position in the case. The judge then discharged the Jersey Judge.

The Medical-Legal Society Demands Its Repeal by the Legislature.

The Medical-Legal Society of New York has prepared a report advocating the repeal of the present law, which provides for the punishment of an unsuccessful attempt at suicide as a crime. Copies of the report have been sent to both branches of the Legislature, and it will also be submitted to the Constitutional Convention.

It is signed by the Committee of the Society, which consists of Clark Bell, Chairman; George Trimble Davidson and Albert Bach, and the reasons given for demanding the repeal of the law are that it does not operate as a deterrent to the commission of the crime of suicide, but only stimulates the would-be suicide to higher efforts towards self-destruction, thus increasing the number of crimes; that it repeats all former law making suicide itself a crime, only making the unsuccessful attempt punishable; that the person attempting the act is usually insane, and that in effect the present statute is practically inoperative, and that in consequence it ought to be wiped from the books.

On Nov. 17 Ah Loy won the case by default. Tung's lawyer was engaged in another court, and when the case was called, Justice McMahon decided within a minute that the defendant failed to appear.

On Nov. 22 a marshal of the Ninth District Civil Court, armed with a judgment for $15 and interest thereon, went to Fung's place of business and seized everything in sight. Even the customers' laundry was taken.

Loy had still another surprise in store for Fung. He had him arrested on a charge of perjury in swearing that Loy was an entire stranger to him.

Fung remained in jail until Dec. 31 last, when he was discharged. Loy failed to appear to prosecute.

Court Officer Fay arrested the two defendants yesterday. The charges made against them. The further hearing of the case was postponed until to-morrow afternoon.

Run Over by an Unknown.

Dennis McCarthy Hurt More Severely Than He Supposed.

A policeman found Dennis McCarthy, thirty-nine years old, of 521 East Eighty-first street, lying on the sidewalk at Eighty-fourth street and Third avenue last night.

McCarthy told the officer that he was run over at Ninth street and Third avenue. He believed that he was not hurt, but he was badly hurt.

$150 FOR A BEATING.

Meat-Chopper Weller Gets Judgment Against the Seher Brothers.

In the City Court, before Judge Van Wyck and a jury, George Weller, a meat chopper of 519 East One Hundred and Thirty-fourth street, has recovered $150 damages against Julius Seher and Charles Seher, two brothers, engaged in the provision business at 109 Third avenue, for an assault committed by them upon Weller.

Lawyer Louis Stecker, of 275 Broadway, who appeared for Weller, claimed that June 1 last, while Weller was delivering some chopped meat to the Seher brothers, the brothers charged him with delivering less meat to them than they had sent him to deliver, and that they invited him into their storeroom, which is in the rear of their business, and when there he closed the door and assaulted and beat him so that both of his eyes became black and blue.

Julius Seher denied positively that he struck Weller, but admitted that he was assaulted, and in self-defense beat Weller.

DIFFERENCES UNSETTLED.

Troubles Between Wood-Carvers and Manufacturers.

The strained relations existing between the Wood-Carvers of this city and the four manufacturing firms referred to in the manifesto, recently issued by the workmen, and published exclusively in Monday's "Evening World," are still in the same condition. The manufacturers threaten a lock-out unless the nine-hour-per-day schedule is agreed to. This offer has been rejected by the Union, and the present differences, when so many other men are out of employment.

BAD BLOOD.

Is a source of much suffering.

The system should be thoroughly cleared of all impurities, and the blood kept in a healthy condition.

For three years I was so troubled with material poison that life was a misery. I tried several remedies, but could get no relief.

A few bottles of SSS made a complete and permanent cure.

Greatest Sale of NOTIONS and Dressmaking Supplies Ever Held in America.

Having purchased from the well-known importing firm of Levi Bros. & Blum, 121 and 123 Greene Street, their entire stock of Notions and Dressmaking Supplies at an enormous sacrifice, we are offering the same at prices realizing only from 25 to 50 Cents on the Dollar.

For many years this firm have been the largest importers of high-class Notions in the country. As they are retiring from business we have closed out their entire stock of Notions, which forms the largest purchase of these goods ever made. The sacrifice is so great as to enable us to offer them at an average of one-third actual import cost.

As Notions are articles of daily necessity our patrons will materially economize by supplying their future needs at this sale, while dressmakers will find it to their advantage to buy in large quantities.

BRIDE GOT CONSENT BY WIRE

New York Man Marries a Chicago Girl in Milwaukee.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Jan. 10.—A young couple, accompanied by an elderly gentleman, alighted from the Chicago train last night, and were at once conveyed to the Rev. Mr. St. George's residence. Greatly to the disappointment of the young people, the clergyman refused to marry them because the bride was not of legal age, and could not produce the written consent of her parents. The telegram was then received to, and one hour later an answer to the young woman's request arrived.

Her parents expressed their surprise, but granted the wish of their daughter, and an hour later Miss Gertrude V. Reid, daughter of Horace Reid, of Chicago, and William Brigham White, a wealthy New York manufacturer, were man and wife.

Syrian Weds a Chicago Girl.

CHICAGO, Jan. 10.—Nolop Parema, a native of Syria, was refused a license yesterday to marry Miss Alice Hammer, some twenty years of age. The bride's mother, however, was appointed his guardian, and the license was then issued. In one corner I saw a woman, Mr. Parema will leave in a few days for Syria.

When all limitations, Milwaukee's California is a standard tonic since 1884. 1911 W. W.

Undergraff and my partner proceeded; a little later I followed.

When I descended the stone steps into the arched way under the front stoop it was dark, but I perceived a female figure dart up the other side and run down the street. I rapped on the basement door and Undergraff admitted me.

"All your family in?" I asked.

"I have no family besides my daughter. She is in. We keep two servants. I don't know whether they are in or not."

We followed the old banker into his front cellar and under the pavement, through a sheet-iron door, into a bricked enclosure, which contained a steel vault of massive ironwork. I doubt if a bombardment mortar could have demolished it.

The old man explained all about his contrivances, which I paid no heed to. I had made up my mind on the matter and how I should prove my reasoning.

"I have no family besides my daughter. She is in. We keep two servants. I don't know whether they are in or not."

"What is that?" I asked.

"The jewel box of the Marchioness L'Yvonne came in that case. I laid it there to be used when she redeems her property."

I lifted the box, and held it up to the light. It was a small, ornate, and very valuable jewel box. I had never seen one like it before. It was a masterpiece of craftsmanship. I had never seen one like it before. It was a masterpiece of craftsmanship.

Will Answer

Gov. Hogg, of Texas.

"Your World Almanac has been valuable and serviceable by reason of its statistics, ready reference, &c., and I take pleasure in so stating to you."

A Million

Gov. Boies, of Iowa.

"I take pleasure in testifying to the high standard of The World Almanac as a work of reference. Accurate in the various statistics furnished and the general information which it contains. It bears evidence of care and attention taken by its author in its compilation."

Questions

Gov. Northen, of Georgia.

"I have found The World Almanac of very great service to me, both for its general information, and its splendid store of political facts and figures. I know of no publication in which so much information is crowded in such small space and made so accessible. I consider it a constant companion for the desk and satchel, and do not expect to be without it."

OLD UNDERGRAFF'S THIEF.

Showing How Dust Figured in the Detection of a Robber.

We have an enviable reputation for ferreting out mysteries, my partner and myself, and the firm of Dolls & Finald owes its celebrity to several unique pieces of "thoughtfulness." I term them "specimens of thoughtfulness." Whenever I undertake a case I try to imagine what would have happened everybody connected with the ante-circumstances "had only thought." We have, therefore, been successful "thinkers," rather than the successful "detectives" we are put down in the directories.

It is a case, which incident I shall relate, but I reckon the dust episode will best illustrate what I mean by "thinking successfully."

Martley Undergraff was one of our best customers. He was a banker doing bus-

ness in Astoria lane. He loaned money, shaved, packed, and jeweled. The dust episode will best illustrate what I mean by "thinking successfully."

Martley Undergraff was one of our best customers. He was a banker doing bus-
